

SIX WEDDINGS, FIVE DIVORCES

Much Married Doctor
Declares He Has Enough.

HE SAYS NEVER AGAIN

Judge Sorry He Can't Issue
Injunction to Prevent a Seventh Event.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Enough is usually enough. Dr. Gabor Kingstone, chiropractor and famous here as a prize-fight referee, and also as a glutton for punishment in the matrimonial arena, declares that he has had enough. Six trips to the altar and five jaunts to the divorce court are said to be responsible for his new conviction.

The recent and last marital bout in which the doctor-referee was given a decision in the straw that broke the back of the drama. Coming as it did a short time after a previous killing, Dr. Kingstone was forced to throw up the sponge and cry "Never again!"

matrimonial defeats, each of which Dr. Kingstone was first married in 1895 to Miss Mary and for fifteen years the couple lived happily. Then his wife died. And then began an unbroken line of bitter added on much more to the doctor's cup of woe.

In 1911 he married Miss Maude Mannie, and was granted a divorce in 1916 on the ground of extreme cruelty. He then became enamored of Miss Ruby Armstrong and, realizing that this luck had changed, he led her to the altar. He led her to the divorce court in 1918 and was divorced on the ground of extreme cruelty. In a few months he was again married to Marie Stanley, was divorced and married her a second time in the same year. The latter marriage was annulled on the ground of fraud.

Two years passed. The doctor had become a confirmed bachelor. He was no longer on the matrimonial market. He was through. Then one afternoon Miss Mildred Gardner came rushing into his office at 101 Post street and begged him to marry her, she declares. Gabor didn't want to, as he told the judge, but the anxious one was so insistent that he put the "closed" sign on his office door window, took his fiancée to Oakland and was united. This was on August 4.

Three days later the first smoke of the erupting volcano of matrimonial trouble began to curl up to the skies. The doctor said that he knew there was mischief afoot when his wife lost a number of hairpins while in the kitchen of their home with a young law student at a party. Witnesses at the divorce trial testified that the wife had said that she didn't love the doctor, that she had married him for money and a home. They said that she had told the young law student: "You know, darling, that I love only you."

Kingstone affirmed that he had bought his sixth spouse a gold wedding ring, and suitable clothing, but that she pined for a platinum circle set with diamonds, and that her heart was set on a sealskin coat. He told his wife that he couldn't afford these things, and in three bitter words of repartee she broke his heart. She called him "an old man."

The cup of woe was now flowing over. The doctor was further embittered when he learned that his wife had fainted to him as to where she had passed an afternoon. He came to the court for consolation.

"If this court had the jurisdiction I think it would be advisable to issue an injunction to prevent this man from marrying again," said Judge Flood, when the testimony showed that the doctor had been to but six times with Cupid hurling the arrow.

Dr. Kingstone was stunned by the court's remark. There was no need of an injunction, he told the judge. He didn't intend to marry again, he said—he had had enough.

The doctor's attorney interposed legal objections to any provision in the decree which would prevent his client from marrying again. The judge admitted that he could not legally prevent the chiropractor from making a seventh trip to the altar.

The doctor left the court a miserable man, his voice trembling as he spoke. Once outside the halls of justice, however, he brightened up. His cigar assumed a combative upward slant, his hat was tilted over one eye. And to his friends he admitted that a seventh call upon Hymen might be made, if Cupid shot straight enough.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You
Darken Gray, Faded Hair
With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy and beautiful.—Advt.

New Country Club House at Okmulgee Opens Next Friday

Okmulgee Country Club.

Special to the World.
OKMULGEE, Oct. 2.—Adding much to the recreational and social life of Okmulgee, the new Okmulgee Country club will be formally opened with a reception and banquet on October 4. The reception and banquet will be held in the new club house which has just been completed at a cost of $150,000. The clubhouse stands southeast of the city on a wooded hill overlooking the 120-acre club grounds on which a nine-hole golf course, tennis courts and other game spaces have been laid out. The site of the clubhouse is one of the highest points near the city and the house commands a delightful view on all sides.

The clubhouse is built of native stone in broken rustic ashlar style and is said to be one of the largest, best equipped and most commodious country club buildings in the south-west. The club building contains a large ball room, living room, women's room, smoking room, dining room and cafe, billiard room, bowling alley, kitchen, baths and lockers.

The country club was organized more than a year ago and now has about 225 members. The organizers of the club were T. D. Harris,

M. E. Graham, W. E. Wood, Joe Harris, W. A. McBride, Jay Beiford, C. W. Wangerlin, Dr. E. T. McDevitt and E. T. Noble.

Officers of the club are: C. W. Wangerlin, president; M. E. Graham and J. Ray Brown, vice-presidents; T. D. Harris, secretary; W. E. Wood, treasurer, and Joe Harris, M. E. Graham, E. H. Moore, Jay Beiford, A. A. Price, A. J. Peters, J. Ray Brown, H. E. Kennedy, trustees. E. J. Schmidt is executive secretary of the club, and Tom Harris is of the golf club.

THEY ALL POINT ONE WAY

Straw Votes in Picture Houses All
Strong for Harding.

In the nationwide straw ballot being conducted in 3,800 motion picture theaters by the Associated First National Pictures, Inc., yesterday, the third day of the balloting showed Senator Harding still running strongly ahead of Governor Cox. The total vote in New York city to date for Harding is 8,267, as against 3,533 for Cox. Reports from Columbus, Ohio, give Harding 1,993 and Cox 660. Akron, Ohio, voted 175 for Harding and 76 for Cox. New Haven, Conn., gave Harding 90, while Cox got 34.

The sentiment was still running against the league of nations.

ANFU PARTY IS IN DISGRACE

Leaders Hide Out With Prices on Their Heads.

PEKING, Oct. 2.—The fall of the "Anfu clique," commonly identified as the pro-Japanese party of China, because of the facility with which the Japanese have concluded loans with China in exchange for valuable concessions and privileges during the period of its predominance, is seemingly complete and irrevocable. So complete is the collapse that its chief representatives are at the moment in hiding, with prices on their heads.

For five days every average leader from the league quarter has been watched day and night, and every passer-out, Chinese or foreign, has been subjected to inspection, on the suspicion amounting to belief that those wanted are harbored in some one or several of the legations and that they will eventually try to escape from the city. Likewise all city gates are closely guarded to prevent passage of any on the proscripted list.

It is customary in Peking to post a railway station and places generally where people congregate posters with the picture of persons known to be pickpockets, sneak thieves or burglars. Never before, however, in the memory of the oldest resident, have men who have occupied high places of authority in affairs of the nation been so proscribed.

This time, however, the streets were "billed" with cues and descriptions of a half dozen of the chief political offenders, subjects of a presidential decree calling for their arrest on a broad charge of having been guilty of bringing about the military commotion in July and earlier. Rewards, ranging from $10,000 to $30,000 were publicly offered for their delivery into custody.

As an afterthought, the photograph of one of those proscribed was removed. General Tuan Chi-kwei's because of indignity to the uniform which he was shown to be wearing. A new picture is being sought which will present him in civilian garb. Similar measures are contemplated with respect to General Hsu Shu-cheng (Little Hsu) who also appears in uniform. Little Hsu has the distinction of being the most pressingly wanted, to judge from the fact that his capture is the only one valued as high as $20,000. The others and rewards for their arrest are:

Tseng Y-chun, former minister of communications, $20,000.

Li Shih-hao, former minister of finance, $10,000.

Chu Shen, former minister of justice, $10,000.

Liang Hung-chi, chief secretary of the senate, $10,000.

Tuan Chi-kwei, erstwhile commander-in-chief of Field Marshal Tuan Chi-jui's combined armies, $10,000.

Yao Kun, president of the supreme court, $10,000.

Yao Kun-shen, vice minister of communications, $10,000.

It is announced that the men sought will be given civil trials if arrested. In the meantime the authorities are taking charge of their property both real and personal, to be held pending the outcome of such trial.

A new list of minor offenders is reported to be in process of preparation embracing practically all members of the Anfu club who have been some distinguished in the past by their political activities. Besides a presidential decree is going forth dissolving all branch organizations in all provinces where they exist. The local headquarters of the Anfu club have been searched and the doors sealed.

LANDRU CASE IS WEAK

Man Who Made Away With Eleven
Women May Not Suffer for His Crimes.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The preliminary investigation in the case of Henri Landru, whom the police refer to as the Gambais "Bluebeard" and hold responsible for the disappearance of 11 women to whom he had promised marriage, has just been concluded. It has lasted 15 months. All the documents in the case amounting to over five thousand have been turned over to the prosecutor general of the republic, Judge Bonin, who conducted the preliminary investigation. This judge immediately left for a delayed vacation. He was accompanied by the good wishes of Landru, who told the judge that it had been a great comfort to him to make his acquaintance and that he hoped the feeling was mutual.

Landru has consistently refused to answer the questions of Judge Bonin and has made the investigation difficult for the magistrate. Landru is confident of acquittal and is already considering offers from moving picture concerns in the event his bing freed.
